Society doings were somewhat on the wand this week, as the Emergency Aid Committee claimed the attention of all the matrons and all the buds at the Made-in-America Fete. The early part of next week will be rather dull, sosially, for Christmastide is, in truth, upon us, and those who interested themselves in charity last week will be apt to think that "charity begins at home," if their shopping is not finished. WHAT MILADY WEARS

Fashionable Women Are Adopting Fuller and Daintier Gowns.

FEW nights ago, at a fushionable charity A entertainment, a fascinating little New York girl appeared in a costume representative of the early part of the last century. Unless Dame Fashion veers decidedly around, before very long we shall be wearing this identical style, for each day brings skirts fuller and shorter and bodices more contracted. One of the most picturesque frocks is being worn by Miss Ella Brock. The material is pale blue Pompadour silk, liberally sprayed with pink rosebuds, and the gown has a snugly fitting basque, the decolletage softened with cream net. The skirt is quite short, and is shirred over the hips and fluted at the hem. An inch-wide black velvet bow, with long streamers, adds a finishing touch at the back.

Miss Eleanor Bispham wears a delicate frock of pale blue satin, over which is hung a tunic of blue and silver bugles. The skirt is in dancing length. An effective gown of deep garnet velvet was worn by Miss Kitty Penn Smith recently. It was hung quite straight from the shoulders, hardly defining the waist line, and was devoid of trimming. Mrs. George McFadden is also wearing a smart gown of deep red velvet. It is draped in Grecian fashion and filled in at the decolletage with soft cream-colored lace. Over this Mrs. McFadden wears a gorgeous cloak.

Miss Nancy Coleman appeared recently in a girlish little gown of palest pink pussy-willow taffeta. It was made quite simply, relying on the draping for effect, and had a wide girdle and an overskirt of the taffeta. The tiny sleeves were caught on the shoulders with rosebuds. Miss Mary Evelyn Chew looks well in a danging frock of soft white crepe de chine, combined with black velvet. The skirt is of crepe de chine, accordion pleated, and the shortwaisted bodice consists of a wide band of black velvet without fulness, relieved by a little edging of tulle. The latter is also used to form the Bleaves.

The ever-popular and always practical black gown is holding its own, and quite a number of the younger set have adopted them for many occasions. Mrs. Walter Jeffords made her appearance recently in a stunning all-black gown of satin and net. The bodice was cut low over the shoulders and held by bands of jet. The young matron's only ornament was a string of pearls. Mrs. George Emlen Starr is wearing an original dancing frock of black not over satin, with a wide girdle of black-and-white checked velvet.

Miss Edwina Bruner's statuesque beauty is well get off by a gown of black satin, combined with white tulls and jet.

Mrs. Churchill Williams has selected a smart black satin dance frock, the skirt of which is trimmed with a flounce of soft shadow lace. The bodice has a cape effect of the lace, which also forms the sleaves. Folds of tuils fill in the V. shaped decolletage. The skirt is made quite abort for dancing.

GERMANTOWN TO FIGHT FOR ADDITIONAL POLICE

Citizens Aroused By Councils' Failure to Comply With Director Porter's Request for Funds to Increase Force. Organizations Unite.

United action to force an appropriation from Councils for more police in Germantown was discussed today by leading civic workers when they learned that Councils had ignored Director Porter's demand for provision for 500 new po-

Three Germantown associations will combine in the new effort to get adequate protection. For several months there has been agitation for more police as the result of many robberies in the Germantown section, The three organizations are the Germantown Business Men's Association, the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Improvement Association and the East Germantown Improvement Association. A month ago delegations from all three interviewed Director Porter and urged the necessity for more police in their districts. They pointed out the record of robberies in the section, deglaring the present force in Germantown too small to meet the situation.

The organizations also sent many letters to Councils asking for an appropriation for more police, but the letters were ignored. The same fate befell Director Porter's request at Councils' meeting Thursday. It was learned today that members of the East Germantown Improvement League are talking of forming a Vigilance Committee to keep down the number of robberies in that section.

Like measures may be resorted to by members of the other two organizations. Residents of Germantown are virtually in a state of terror because of the large number of robberies.

The Rev. Harle W. Hathaway, pastor of the Covenant Presbyterian Church, of 21st street and Chelten avenue, said: "I cannot understand how City Councils can remain passive when it knows what conditions are in Germantown. We are virtually helpless

William M. Embardt, president of the Germantown and Chestnut Hill Improvement Association, said:

"We shall certainly combine the work of the Germantown civic organizations. The lack of police is appalling. Not only do we need police to prevent burglaries, but the main thoroughfares are the scenes of many accidents because they are not properly policed."

HOBOES FLOCK HERE FOR SHARE OF $50,000

Councils' Appropriation for Unemployed Attracts Unworthy From Distant States-"Some Good Pickin's," Beggar at Aid Headquarters Declares.

Attracted by the $50,000 appropriation for the unemployed, which was fathered by Common Councilman John P. Connelly, hoboes and members of the wanderlust brotherhood are flocking to Philadelphia. Riders of freight cars and professional beggars are eager to participate in the appropriation.

Fifty professional beggars and widely known charity seekers have been arrested by detectives of the mendicant squad since Connelly's ordinance became a law through the support of Republican Organization Councilmen.

Men whose homes are in distant cities crowded about the Emergency Aid Committee's headquarters at 1428 Walnut street today eager to get cash. Many of the applicants frankly admitted they had heard of Connelly's ordlnance,

Since the appropriation was made, no particular method has been adopted to distribute the city money. Four widely known charity agencies have declined to assist in the distribution. It has been suggested by prominent social workers that the danger of bad politics being injected in the new movement caused the four charity agencies to refuse to participate in the movement.

When the appropriation was made, it was decided that the Emergency Aid Committee should have charge of the distribution of the city money. As yet not a cent of the $50,000 fund has been distributed.

"There ought to be some good pickin's here." said a beggar as he stood outside of 1428 Walnut street. The appearance of professional mendicants who have been loitering near the aid headquarters the last two days has caused residents to complain.

On file in the headquarters of the Society for Organizing Charity are many applications from total strangers who want a share of the $50,000 appropriation. Some came from Connecticut, Rhode Island and other States. The applications for cash aid were made at the different substations of the Emergency Aid Committee.

Many suggestions were made today how the $50,000 could be spent. Social workers suggested paying it to men employed on the highways, in parks and on boulevards. An enthuslastic war veteran, who saw the 'hoboes.' said a part of the $50,000 should be spent varnishing and cleaning the statue of William Penn on top of City Hall. A neighborhood house where poor children can spend their winter afternoons was suggested by a social worker. This man said if such a house was constructed work could be obtained for many unemployed.

Max Herzberg, president of the United Hebrew Charities, said: "I do not think it is a good idea to have Councils appropriate money for unemployed. There is always chance of an invasion of unworthy men from other cities who might impose upon the municipality.

"The heads of the various municipal departments ought to ascertain just what improvements are needed and then give work to the unamployed." he said.

TENEMENT DWELLER TO HAVE RENTING BUREAU

Civic Workers Plan to Establish Station for Advice of Victims of Housing Evils in Finding Them Better Quarters.

A renting bureau where Philadelphia's poor can obtain information relating to sanitars dwellings which rent for the same amount that is charged for dirty and windowless tenements will be established shortly by civic workers.

The plan is to educate the tenement poor and urge them to leave their present insanitary homes and move to other sections of the clty where there is no difference in the cost of rent-Supplying residents of the tenements with information about better homes was suggested today by members of the Philadelphia Housing Commission. It has not been decided where the renting bureau will be located.

A study of various residential sections of Philadelphia has convinced civic workers that there are many sanitary houses, with real windows, bathtubs, running water and other lms provements which can be rented for the same amount charged for dirty tenements.

Trained social investigators will be assigned to make tours of the city, locate vacant houses and to ascertain the rents. Records of houses known to be sanitary will be kept at the

After a record of about 500 sanitary homes where the rent is moderate has been made, investigators will be assigned to congested sections where dirty and unventilated tenements are. Residents of tenements will be told of the sanitary dwellings, where rent is no greater than they pay for the hovels in which they exist.

"There are hundreds of families in the tenement house section," said one civic worker today, "who could easily nove to up-to-data houses in the northern part of the city. Many houses there charge the same rents that landlords charge for the unventilated dwellings which are living vaults and death chambers."

The action of Councils' finance committee in ignoring the appropriations for the new Division of Housing and Sanitation was again condemned today in various parts of the city.

Voters, especially those who live in the 7th Ward, of which Select Councilman Charles Seger is leader, expressed their feelings openly today about his stand relating to the new housing laws. Seger is among the Councilmen who have declared they were opposed to the new Division of Housing and Sanitation, That the attitude which Seger has taken in connection with the new housing laws will injure him politically was predicted today.

Common Councilman Connelly has been mentioned several times as a probable candidate for City Solicitor on the Republican Organization ticket. He has also expressed himself as being opposed to the housing reform provided by act of legislature, to enforce which Councils refuses appropriations, because in his opinion it is too drastle.

Residents of some sections of the city susgested today the holding of mass meetings in localities where the dirty tenements are located to enlighten the poor on the stand that Connelly and Seger have taken.

FORMER COUNTESS REWEDS

Marie Satterfield Bride of English Army Captain.

ALLENTOWN, Pa., Dec. 13.-The marriage of Marie Satterfield, formerly the wife of Count Henry von Larish, of Austria, to Captain Albert Sanderson, of the British army, has been announced here:

Miss Satterfield is a daughter of the late John Satterfield, of Buffalo, N. Y., a Standard Oll magnate, who left an estate at his death, 15 years ago, valued at $10,000,000.

The marriage of Miss Satterfield to the Austrian nobleman took place at Buffalo, in June, 1901, but several years later she divorced him. following the institution of a suit against the Count by a firm of German matrimonial brokers for $50,000 for services in making the match and in financing his suit for the hand of the American helress. The pair have two boys, who are now with their grandmother.

Count von Larish is a son of the famous Countess von Larish, of the Austrian Court, who claims to be a cousin of the Emperer Franz Josef of Austria. Her memoirs, published last year, created a sensation.

The Countess is said to have introduced the Baroness Marie Vetsera to Crown Prince Rudolph, husband of Stephanie, now the Countess Lonyay.

EMPLOYES THANKFUL FOR JOBS

The best Christmas presents which many bank employes will receive this year are their positions, which were restored when the Stock Exchange resumed business about three weeks ago.
